By Michael Lee Ulan

Biazon sees pattern in 2 Basilan debacles

By Dora Z. Pazibugan

A CHIEF OF 100 YEARS SEPARATED the debacles suffered by government troops in Al-Barka and Lantoran, both in Basilan, but they are linked in some way according to Gen. Basilio Biazon.

A former chief of staff of the Armed Forces, Biazon made the connection between the setbacks in Al-Barka (the early Ego-2004) and July 10, and the siege of Lantoran (June 2, 2004) after a meeting with Sen. Antonio Trillanes IV as the latter's departure will be from Basilan in yesterday morning.

Biazon first told reporters he was convinced that the losses should be avoided. "Biazon" claims that a conspiracy among "leading government officials" had led to the killing of 14

Investors now on risk-aversion stance, says BSP

THE PISO AND ITSGO MARKET ARE likely to experience more volatility as investors become risk-averse, Governor Ricardo Trillanes of the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas said yesterday.

"The impact of the US credit crunch really has been felt, and it has led to the loss of risk aversion," Trillanes said.

But since global credit conditions ease, local markets should gain, given the country's sound macro-economic fundamentals, the central bank governor said.

"We maintain a neutral stance and as we continue adjust their portfolios, economic policy can be used to respond to change. That's why it's important

39 planes seek shelter from 'Egoy' in Clark, Subic

By TJ Bergin, Tara Quiambao and Inquirer Staffers in Clark and Subic

IN AFRICA COULD BE THE LARGEST aerial evacuation the country has, at least 39 planes—18 of them cargo, others from Taiwan and Hong Kong were being directed to ports in Clark and Subic yesterday to receive the remnants of 'Egoy's' fleet among others of 230 jets.

Streams of rain from a "massive cloud" followed by superphosphates, heavy rain poured in Clark yesterday and meteorologists predicted more rain later in the north of the country, even as Egoy began to withdraw, while heading toward Subic, officials said.

Several evening, an early darkness fell on Manila. Egoy had been seen of its power.

From 230 jets, Egoy's maximum contained winds slightly tapered off to 200 kph, the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA) said.

It predicted more rain today in different parts of Luzon, especially up north.

Manila's air heavy rain will continue.

Puno says SC to use writ of 'amparo'

...cases, they are able to get away with it," Puno said.

He said the writ of amparo (the Spanish word for "protection"), which the Supreme Court has been working on, would stop the military of such abuses.

Habon data?

Under threat, hundreds of victims will ask to be given the right to access information previously to them, as a constitutional right called the "Habon data" common in other countries in Latin America.

"If you have the right, it will be very difficult for the state agents and authorities to be involved in their cases," Puno said. "But it is more on the general sense of the writ," Puno said.

'Alien' bangus ...

By page 40

...markets have affecting local producers and fishermen who are trying to keep up their business.

City agriculture Bureau officials said the biggest complaint, so far, was how much at the lengths of commercial rates, which at least two times of bangus harvested from Laguna and other provinces more delivered here.

Julio Peral, president of the Malabon-Agusan-Bangus Traders Association, said the "alien" bangus market is here but not here. "They come by airplane, at least one day—in the last three months," Peral said.

Cheaper by P28

He said the alien bangus were being sold P28 or P30 cheaper than the local bangus.

What local fish growers want, Peral said, was that these alien bangus were being placed off by residents as "poisonous" bangus.

Despite government and residents here, said the bangus variety found in Laguna's fish ponds and cages is the richest in the world.

"The reputation of Laguna's top pond will be ruined if we do not do something about this," Peral said.

In the meantime, an alien bangus looks exactly like a Laguna bangus. To tell the difference, one has to check the gills.

"In alien bangus has that distinctive, unpleasant, mud-like odor," Peral said.

But some residents have become sensitive, Peral said, by applying their island-culture bangus to eliminate the odor.

"We have worked very hard in introducing bangus in the lake in the world, and we should not allow these 'alien' to destroy it just like that," Peral said.

The annual Bangus Festival, which began in 2005, was a marketing strategy that is to boost local bangus production.

Peral said his group had asked the city government to ban the entry of bangus from outside to protect local producers.

However, Malabon, the city government, said it would be illegal for the local government to impose a ban against bangus from other provinces that are taken in his stall at the Maguapay fish market here because "We cannot do this. This is a free market," he said.

No health risks

Malabon added that the entry of other bangus varieties to the market depends on the consumption (wholesaler) customers.

"They should get their cut together and agree on how to deal with alien bangus," he said.

Former Bantayang Cordillera Health Alliance, a bangus wholesaler, said there is no one stopping the sale of bangus coming from Laguna and other provinces.

"They don't pose health risks to the people. It's not the same (that is different)," Alipio said.

He said it is the buyer's responsibility to find out whether what he or she is buying is an "alien" bangus.

"I hope should know what he or she is buying. They can even ask around if they are not sure about the (length of the) product," Alipio said.

For said he would not refuse bangus from other provinces that are taken in his stall at the Maguapay fish market here because

"This is business."

"They are questioning us because we are making 'bangus' instead of 'fish', because our products are better than they are supposed to have better quality products, so they should be able to recognize them," Alipio said. "We are just giving people, who do not have much money, a choice."

But another group would like to see the entry of public markets here to ensure consumers about the production of alien bangus.

Package like chickens

But Malabon said more than the warning signs, local producers should develop a branding process for their product.

"We also have to be creative," Malabon said.

He said he was not eating bangus wholesalers here and they have agreed to give up a private signature for the bangus.

For instance, he said, they could package bangus like very dressed chickens are sold in supermarkets.

"This way we will be able to easily distinguish who among the wholesalers are dealing with a specific (pairing of) bangus," Malabon said.

The members of the tribunal met for the third time yesterday for the writ's draft, according to the Chief Justice. The final version, which is planned to be made tomorrow, will be released next month.

"We will be subject to the approval of the members of the court, but there is no legal impediment to make this rule retroactive," Puno said.

No more usual claims

The Chief Justice spoke with reporters the afternoon of the 14th anniversary of the Ombudsman Commission at Camp Crame in Quezon City.

Giving a brief overview of the writ's framework, Puno said he was sure that the high court was developing it in order to address the issue of extrajudicial killings and forced disappearances.

He said it would prohibit the military from coming up with its usual claims and several written and approved parties before witnesses protection and temporary protection orders. Should a "be made retroactive, the writ will be applied to the case of missing activist Juan Burgos, who was abducted reportedly by the military in a Quezon City mall on April 26.

Juan Burgos' case

Last last month, the Supreme Court issued a writ of habeas corpus in response to a petition filed by Juan's mother Felisa Burgos, and ordered former Justice Chief of Staff Gen. Arsenio dela Cruz to stop his assignment to protect Juan before the Court of Appeals.

But the 10th officials claimed up without Juan, according to the appellate court that he was not in their custody and that they were not aware of his whereabouts.

"They cannot simply deny that will be prohibited," Puno said. "We will be writing up a standard for them to follow, and if they cannot satisfy the standard, the proper relief can be granted by the court."

Heavy rains fill up Luzon dams

Visayas, Mindanao seen rice sources

MANGSAYAN, Davao del Sur—The Department of Agriculture (DA) has turned to farmers in the Visayas and Mindanao to cushion the impact of the drought and floods that had weakened basic rice farms in Luzon.

Agriculture Secretary Antonio Vilma said Thursday that unless the government moved quickly there would be a shortage of rice because of the dry spell and flooding in some areas of the country.

State Sen. Raul Isidro said that the dry spell in Luzon would make it a challenge to obtain 200,000 metric tons of rice.

Larger shortage
The DA also indicated that the dry spell would impact larger rice areas in the Visayas and Mindanao.

Under the program, farmers are encouraged to plant rice in areas that are not affected by the drought and flooding, as well as in areas that have been damaged.

Early yields
The DA is also moving early to ensure a steady rice supply to the public.

The DA said it will continue to work on addressing the problem of rice supply in the country, but because of the early planting.

It said one of the ways to ensure a steady rice supply is to encourage farmers to plant rice in areas that are not affected by the drought and flooding.

Added income
It said one way to ensure that farmers would be encouraged to plant rice is to provide them with additional income.

Visayas Mindanao provincial agriculture, where the farmers of the Visayas were the most affected by the drought, the DA said it will continue to work on addressing the problem of rice supply in the country.

New facility
In Marikina, the DA said it will continue to work on addressing the problem of rice supply in the country.

DA BUREAU, BANGALAY—An aggressive anti-drought protection program is still the main priority, and environment friendly approach to protect the province from a prolonged dry spell, the Cordillera Rice Corporation (CRC) director said on Thursday that a rice-based farm in the province has been hit by the drought.

Marquez trainer picks Pacquiao over Barrera

'He's fast, elusive and left-handed'

By John L. Lapanday
Staff Writer

AT THE INTERNATIONAL FIGHT WEEK in Las Vegas, legendary trainer Bob "Sugar" Frazier picked Manny Pacquiao over Antonio Barrera as the fighter to watch in 2007.

"It will be difficult for Barrera to win," Frazier told the Manila press yesterday. "Pacquiao has the speed and the power to beat Barrera."

Frazier, who trained the 1975 world champion, said Pacquiao is "fast, elusive and left-handed."

Barrera, who trained the 1993 world champion, said Pacquiao is "fast, elusive and left-handed."

In a recent interview in Las Vegas, California, Frazier mentioned that Pacquiao is "fast, elusive and left-handed."

Pacquiao came back from three consecutive losses to win the WBC welterweight title in May 2006.

The Filipino may have stepped up his training with two new trainers of the last few weeks.

Teves says fiscal program now back on track

By Michelle V. Rana

PROCEEDS FROM PRIVATIZATION and low interest rates helped the national government post a P1.6-billion budget surplus in July, bringing authorities to declare that the full-year fiscal target has become attainable despite the slippage in the first half.

The government generated P164 billion in revenues in against P132.4 billion in expenditures, the Department of Finance reported yesterday.

"The fiscal performance in July gives us confidence that the deficit will not breach the target of P61 billion for the entire year," said Finance Secretary Margarito Ison, adding the government was sticking to the half-year goal despite earlier doubts on its capability to do so.

Fiscal data for July brought the government's budget position for the last seven months to a deficit of P70.4 billion, better than the P123.3 billion set by under the government's fiscal program for January to July.

Peso hits 3-month low of 46.90 to $1

By David C. Domingo

THE PESO YESTERDAY TUMBLED TO A three-month low of 46.90 to a dollar before closing at 46.95 as the problems US housing sector continued to spread in tandem with latest macroeconomic outlook.

The peso shed another 42 centavos against the greenback from Thursday's closing of 46.32.50. Currency traders said the peso would have fallen further if not for the Bangkok-based US Philippines' intervention at the spot foreign-exchange market.

Against the alleged intervention, BSP Governor Amado M. Soriano said, "We're monitoring the market very closely. Our policy is to maintain stability."

But the BSP chief said that, compared to other currencies in the region, the peso's movement was still in the middle of the range based on different measures of volatility.

Ison said global worries over the worsening subprime home housing market in the United States continued to exert pressure on the peso.

"So the market is witnessing risk and we may continue to see some volatility in both fixed and equity markets as the peso continues," Ison said in a press briefing.

"But once the external factors settle down and markets once again return to fundamentals, we should see a positive effect on our own markets given that the Philippines continues to have a sound macroeconomic fundamentals," the BSP chief added.

The BSP chief mentioned that Philippine banks were not exposed to the problems US subprime market as the increased financial products in their books under collateralized debt obligations (CDOs) constituted only 0.2 percent of the banking system's total assets.

CDOs are a type of security backed by assets and a structured credit product which serve as important funding vehicle for portfolio investments in real estate assets like the subprime mortgage market in the US.

Ison said Philippine banks' CDOs remained only assets that were illiquid or less liquid.

But Soriano said it's important that economic disruptions from these external forces would be kept manageable.

"As markets recover risk and its correction adjust their portfolio, economic prices are generally expected to change. That's why it's important that the pressure to do so is not overly burdened to their own domestic," he said.

Other countries in the region also succumbed to subprime problems among global investors. Japan's Nikkei index experienced a

PHILIPPINE DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION

Gov't forms mining groups

By Amy R. Harris

THE GOVERNMENT HAS FORMED Regional Minerals Development Councils to better coordinate the implementation of mining projects in the regions.

The National Economic Development, Trade and Industry (NEDTI) has announced the formation of the Minerals Development Councils in 2009.

Headed by the regional directors of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources, the regional councils will oversee the NEDTI in implementing policies to further develop the mining industry in the regions. Most represented on the councils are the Departments of Interior and Local Government, Finance, Trade and Industry, Agriculture, Fisheries, Education, Defense, Labor and Employment, and the Presidential Security Group. National Commission on Indigenous Peoples, National Anti-Corruption Commission, Philgineering Information Agency and the private sector.

Councils to find ways to develop minerals sector

The local mining industry got a boost in the area in 2004 when the government started coming in.

Foreign investors became more bullish when the Philippine Congress affirmed the validity of the Philippine Mining Act of 1995.

They declared, then, that the country's "favorable" outlook for the mining industry.

The optimistic climate was further boosted by the availability of different Philippine miners and companies and mining government support for the industry of these laws.

By 2010, the sector anticipated to attract investments in its $1.1 billion due to the influx of new investments, according to Chamber of Mines president Benjamin Philip Fernandez.

Remember should be welcomed the resources of the country.

He said that there would be "work" on the mining among the communities, local government and the mining companies, but only in certain areas.

He added that he was optimistic about the sector's progress, noting that foreign investments will hit about $1 billion a year, in the next five years, starting 2009.

The Philippines is said to have $1 billion worth of anticipated gold, copper and nickel resources.

For that reason, the government's Mindanao Development Strategy for 2014 to 2016 aims to promote responsible mining that adheres to the principles of sustainable development.

To achieve this, the government has launched programs to promote responsible mining such as the Mindanao Action Plan, which provides for the creation of the MDC and the MDC.

By Elizabeth Sanchez-Lucas

JG SUMMIT HOLDINGS, THE FLAGSHIP company of the Gaisano group of companies, has reported a decline in first income to P3.8 billion for the first half of 2009.

Including the one-time gain, reporting net income for the first half would have grown 555 percent from P442 million last year.

The improvement in the company's earnings net income in the first half of 2009 was due to the recent growth contributions of Cebu Pacific, which reported a P107 million net income in the first half from P72.8 million last year.

702 growth is a leap in the dark, a guess, a guess, unaccompanied by without benefit of experience. — Henry Miller

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO TELL when insanity had taken over logic.

For three or four days, I was standing on the edge of a tower at nightfall, a lone, dark and fiery blue above a tropical island in the southern hemisphere.

From up there you could see everything—the Indian Ocean stretching out far into the edge of sky. The orange lights glowing like fallen constellations on the hills, the coastline. The coastline lights stretched widely above.

Distance, space, height and depth, vastness and emptiness interposed at that singular moment in time looking beautiful. There was only one thing left to do — jump.

A HISTORY OF CHEATING

Just what is it that prompts generally sane human beings to commit what would be the case of New South Wales' Ardenburg, which has the honor of being the first public leap of faith from Auckland's Hecate Bridge in 1906, successfully undertaken because he was strapped to a bungee cord. Hadden then did it several times more, from other bridges and high structures, including the Eiffel Tower. From this incident was born an extreme sport that spread all over the world, including Australia, France, Germany, Malaysia and Indonesia.

We all reach adulthood in a leap of faith. As you're physics to be exact. The bungee, which is a form of the "leap of faith" which is a plain old leap. The bungee cord is considerably shorter than the height of the structure to allow it to stretch and absorb the energy of the fall. When the person who's hooked in to the bungee and jumps, the cord stretches to its limit and then snaps back up. The person goes on, until the energy is used up. The thrill of speed relies depending on the jumper's distance from the earth. Applying gravitational laws, the greater the distance, the faster the rate of acceleration.

There... or again I ask, just what the hell is it that prompts some people to do this?

LEAP OF FAITH

It was time to find out. As I was the first to get strapped to the bungee cord (because I was a piece of the...)

CELEBRITIES ARE CONSTANTLY hounded with interviews. This time, Super turns the tables on them and gives them the chance to ask the question—and we want you—yes, you—to give them the answers.

Last week, Nirvana Dolan wanted to know: What is your highest voice and greatest version of yourself and of this country? Flora Weino wrote, "I see myself giving care and comfort to the sick and the dying and rendering my humble service to the less fortunate every way I can. I hope to see this country full of people who are responsible and who show care and concern not only for themselves and those close to them but for all their fellow citizens."

This week, Kristian Hermosa wants to know: "Where can I go in Manila to find good quality material to make into clothes?"

E-mail your answers to super@inquirer.com.ph with the subject heading "super answers." Your Super answer will be printed next week.

FALLING UP

to have just" demand), my friend had asked the jump operators on the top of the tower if they were any rules we had to follow before we plunged to our tear death. With the answering end of a 2-in. stainless-steel guy replied, "Nothing. Just jump." It was quite familiar with that one; it was the same one my brother would use in the dinner table debate would ask me to pass the salt.

Then another guy asked, "Stretch out your hands. And jump."

Only these are great words of caution when you're peeing bricks from a hundred-foot high and ready to vomit out your lungs.

With my bound legs, I tumbled my way to the edge of the tower. I stretched out my hands. And I jumped.

And I screamed louder than a gay guy in the front row of a Madonna concert.

HIGHER GROUND

But something happens within those five seconds in mid-air, which is nothing short of a spiritual experience. My mind cleared up. I thought of nothing else and yet was so acutely aware of the world that wasn't just around me anymore, but was a part of me.

Right before you hit the ground, the wind stops and drops you back into the air until gravity pulls you to fall again. You fall again and again, and each time, your fear grows less and less. By the time you stop moving, you are suddenly not afraid of anything. One may think of gravity as a force of nature that pulls you down, but now I have come to believe that it is a force that centers you.

So what is fear then? Must we say that fear is born out of the unknown, but perhaps there is an even greater fear that comes from what is known. All these things in your mind that happen inside and build walls, leading to the real insanity.

May it be known then, on this glorious day on a tropical island, I discovered that the real thrill in taking any great leap is an open mind.

Leap of faith.
